Interstate Specialty Products: Conflict Minerals Policy

February 2016

“Conflict Minerals” refers to certain minerals and their derivatives mined in the eastern province of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (“DRC”) and in the adjoining countries (“DRC Region”) where revenues generated by their sale may be directly or indirectly financing armed groups engaged in civil war resulting in serious social and environmental abuses. In July 2010, the United States passed the Dodd- Frank Financial Reform Bill. Section 1502 of this bill required all U.S. stock listed companies and their suppliers to disclose the chain of custody usage of Conflict Minerals (Tin, Tantalum, Tungsten, and Gold).

Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. fully supports efforts to eliminate the use of tantalum, tin, gold, and tungsten from improper sources that could promote abuses in the DRC Region and is in the process of obtaining information from its current metal suppliers concerning the origin of the metals that are used to manufacture Interstate’s products. Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. does not directly source these materials from smelters or miners but uses refined metals in the manufacturing of some of our products. Therefore, it relies on the information provided by its suppliers regarding their sourcing of metals. Interstate expects its suppliers to source materials from socially responsible suppliers and that all of its suppliers will comply with the Dodd-Frank regulation and provide all necessary declarations. Suppliers must pass this requirement on to their supply chain if they don’t source directly from smelters and determine the source of specified materials. Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. will assess future business with suppliers who are non-compliant with this policy.

Based on information currently provided by its suppliers, Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. does not knowingly use Conflict Minerals in any of its products.

Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. will continue to regularly perform due diligence and survey its suppliers to verify compliance with this policy.

Interstate Specialty Products, Inc. is committed to ethical practices and compliance with applicable laws and regulation wherever it does business.
